TIA/SLV OBJECTION 5J: OBJECTION BY DELTA AIR LINES, INC. TO CERTAIN CLAIMS ASSERTED BY THE BANK OF NEW YORK TRUST COMPANY AND THE BANK OF NEW YORK FOR TAX INDEMNITIES AND STIPULATED LOSS VALUES

This Objection Relates To:

Tail Nos.: N629DL, N630DL, N631DL and N632DL

Claim Nos.: 5335 (filed by The Bank of New York, as Indenture Trustee)

5154 (filed by Comcast Corporation and transferred to The Bank of New York Trust Company, NA, as Indenture Trustee)

7767, 7768, 7769, 7770 (filed by Comcast MO Financial Services, Inc., and transferred to The Bank of New York Trust Company, NA, as Indenture Trustee)

Delta Air Lines, Inc. (“Delta”), through its undersigned counsel, submits this objection
(the “Objection”) to Proof of Claim No. 5154² filed by Comcast Corporation (“Comcast”),

¹ The Debtors are: ASA Holdings, Inc.; Comair Holdings, LLC; Comair, Inc.; Comair Services, Inc.; Crown Rooms, Inc.; DAL Aircraft Trading, Inc.; DAL Global Services, LLC; DAL Moscow, Inc.; Delta AirElite Business Jets, Inc.; Delta Air Lines, Inc.; Delta Benefits Management, Inc.; Delta Connection Academy, Inc.; Delta Corporate Identity, Inc.; Delta Loyalty Management Services, LLC; Delta Technology, LLC; Delta Ventures III, LLC; Epsilon Trading, Inc.; Kappa Capital Management, Inc.; and Song, LLC.

² Delta understands that Claim 5154, filed by Comcast, was amended by Claim 7770, filed by Comcast MO, on October 17, 2006. The Debtors filed an objection to Claim 5154 as an amended claim on November 22, 2006 [Docket No. 3628]. As there is no record of Claim 5154 having been disallowed or expunged as of the date of seeking a tax indemnity payment with respect to the leveraged lease transaction involving the aircraft bearing the registration (“tail”) number N629DL; to Proof of Claim Nos. 7767, 7768, 7769 and 7770, originally filed by Comcast MO Financial Services, Inc. (“Comcast MO”) and subsequently transferred to The Bank of New York Trust Company, NA (“BNY Trust”),³ seeking tax indemnities with respect to all of the leveraged lease transactions involving all of the aircraft identified above (the “Aircraft”); and Proof of Claim No. 5335 (the “BNY Claims” or the “SLV Claims”) filed by The Bank of New York (“BNY”) as indenture trustee, seeking payment of stipulated loss values with respect to all of the transactions involving the Aircraft. Claims 5154, 7767, 7768, 7769, and 7770 are referred to herein as the “TIA Claims.”

Summary of the Objection

The TIA Claims and the SLV Claims seek recovery for the same matters. The agreements that govern the leveraged lease transactions at issue in this Objection contain a number of provisions that recognize the overlaps among the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims. Among other provisions:

- Section 7(b) of each tax indemnity agreement states that no payment is due in “any event whereby a party to any of the Operative Documents is required to pay and shall have paid in full Stipulated Loss Value or Termination Value, except to the extent that, due to the determination of the date as of which an Event of Loss is deemed to occur pursuant to the definition of Event of Loss, or due to the application of Section the filing of this Objection, in an abundance of caution Delta and the Committee hereby assert this Objection with respect to Claim 5154.

³ Delta and the Committee understand that Comcast MO has transferred its claims as Owner Participant in each of the transactions covered by this Objection to BNY Trust, consistent with transfer notices filed on February 9, 2007.

47(a)(9), the amount of Stipulated Loss Value did not fully compensate the Owner Participant for such Loss.”

- Section 6(d) of each Participation Agreement states that “[i]f any amount is paid by Lessee to the Owner Participant pursuant to the Indemnity Agreement, the amounts of Stipulated Loss Value and Termination Value set forth in Exhibit C to the Lease shall be recomputed in the manner set forth in Section 3(e) of the Lease to reflect the fact of such payment having been made by Lessee.”

The contracts that govern the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims therefore recognize the overlap between the TIA Claims and SLV Claims and require that the claims be adjusted to take account of each other.

Delta submits that a single loss gives rise to a single claim, and that overlapping claims cannot be allowed. Accordingly, the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims cannot both be allowed. Instead, the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims must be adjusted to eliminate the overlaps among them.

Reservation of Other Objections

This Objection applies only to the extent that the TIA Claims seek payments pursuant to tax indemnity agreements, and to the extent that the SLV Claims seek payments of stipulated loss value, with respect to leveraged lease transactions involving the Aircraft. Delta reserves the right to assert additional objections to the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims at a later date, including without limitation (i) additional objections to the extent that the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims relate to other aircraft, (ii) additional objections to the portions of the TIA Claims that seek recovery pursuant to tax indemnity agreements with respect to the Aircraft, and

(iii) objections to other amounts, such as for legal fees or general indemnity, encompassed within the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims.⁴

Background

A. Procedural History and Jurisdiction

1. On September 14, 2005, Delta and a number of its affiliates (collectively, the “Debtors”) each filed a voluntary Chapter 11 petition. The Debtors are debtors in possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. On September 28, 2005, the Office of the United States Trustee appointed an Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the “Committee”) pursuant to section 1102 of the Bankruptcy Code.

2. The Debtors and the Committee previously sought to resolve certain issues relating to leveraged lease claims pursuant to procedures that were approved by the Court in an Order entered October 12, 2006. During a conference on January 31, 2007, the Court suggested that it would prefer that the Debtors assert objections to individual claims, with the aim of identifying different transactions that would provide representative samples of the ways in which various of the Debtors’ leveraged lease agreements were worded. Pursuant to the Court’s request, the Debtors have grouped claims bearing similar characteristics into several categories and have filed objections with the Court based on a sample of tails from each of these categories. This Objection falls within the category represented by TIA/SLV Objection 5, filed with the Court on March 23, 2007 [Docket No. 5401]. The Debtors request that this Objection not proceed to hearing until TIA/SLV Objection 5 has been resolved.

⁴ Pursuant to a court-approved term sheet, Delta has previously agreed not to object to claims seeking stipulated loss value with respect to the Aircraft involved in this particular Objection, except to the extent set forth in this Objection. Delta and the Committee reserve their rights to assert challenges to stipulated loss value calculations in claims not covered by the foregoing term sheet.

3. This Objection relates to four separate leveraged lease transactions. The objection is asserted under section 502 of the Bankruptcy Code and Bankruptcy Rule 3007. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction to consider this matter under 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This is a core proceeding under 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2). Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

B. Leveraged Leases Generally

4. Many of the Debtors' aircraft are subject to leveraged lease financing transactions. A typical leveraged lease transaction includes these components:

(a) The parties enter into a master agreement (called a "Participation Agreement") that, among other things, specifies the roles of the parties and that identifies the other agreements that are to be executed.

(b) A trust (the "Owner Trust") obtains ownership of one or more aircraft. The Owner Trust finances its acquisition of the aircraft through (i) an equity contribution from the entity that is the beneficiary of the Owner Trust (the "Owner Participant") and (ii) borrowings from one or more lenders (the "Lenders" or "Lender Participants"). In more complicated structures, the borrowings may include various forms of public debt financing.

(c) The Owner Trust enters into an aircraft lease (the "Lease") with Delta and/or Comair, Inc. The Lease is usually a "net" lease which requires the lessee to pay all taxes and operating expenses. Basic rent payments are normally sufficient to amortize the debt payments to the Lenders, and often also provide a cash return – referred to as "equity free cash" – for the Owner Participant.

(d) In order to provide security for the borrowed funds, the Owner Trustee typically grants a security interest in its ownership interests in the aircraft, and also assigns (for security purposes) its interests in the Lease (subject to certain exceptions), to an indenture trustee acting for the lenders (the “Indenture Trustee”). The Indenture Trustee makes debt payments from the lease rentals and distributes the excess (if any) to the Owner Trust. The Indenture Trustee usually is entitled to control the exercise of remedies upon the occurrence of an event of a default.

5. Leveraged lease transactions provide significant tax benefits to Owner Participants. Rental payments are treated as income, but interest payments on the outstanding debt are deductible, as are transaction expenses (over time). More importantly, the Owner Participant in a leveraged lease transaction is entitled to take accelerated depreciation deductions with respect to the aircraft. The excess of these deductions over the rental income may be used to offset other income that the Owner Participant has, or other income in the consolidated tax group of which the Owner Participant is a member.

6. Leases in leveraged lease transactions typically provide for the payment of a “stipulated loss value” or a “termination value” (“SLV”) in the event of a foreclosure or other event. SLV is usually determined by reference to a schedule attached to the Lease that lists either dollar amounts to be paid (depending on the date of a triggering event) or SLV percentages which are multiplied by a fixed number (such as the Lessor’s cost) to generate the dollar amount of SLV. SLV can be calculated in different ways, but typically it is calculated (i) to permit the payoff of the remaining debt, and (ii) to allow the Owner Participant to earn an agreed-upon return through the date of termination. The calculation of SLV takes account of, among other things, the adverse tax consequences to the Owner Participant from a foreclosure or other event.

7. Lessees in leveraged lease transactions usually enter into Tax Indemnity Agreements (“TIAs”) with Owner Participants that also relate to the potential tax consequences of various events. Some TIAs provide either (a) indemnification to the Owner Participant if the Lessee’s acts or omissions result in the “recapture” of prior depreciation deductions or (b) indemnification for unexpected inclusions in the Owner Participant’s taxable income as a result of certain listed causes. Other TIAs provide indemnification to the Owner Participant for both (a) and (b), above.

8. As noted above, Leases typically are assigned to an Indenture Trustee. The assignments usually include an assignment (in whole or in part) of rights to collect SLV and to use payments to repay principal and interest on the outstanding debt plus certain fees and expenses. The assignment documents typically provide that the balance of any SLV payment is to be returned to the Owner Trustee. On the other hand, TIAs usually are not assigned to other parties.

9. A diagram of a typical leveraged lease structure is set forth below:

10. As described above, stipulated loss value calculations and tax indemnity agreement claims each typically address the tax consequences, to an Owner Participant (or the tax group of which it is a member), that result from a premature termination of the transaction or from other specified events. In fact, the governing contracts usually contain provisions that recognize the overlaps between SLV and TIA Claims. Regardless of whether or not the overlap is discussed in the contracts themselves, however, the fact remains that SLV and TIA Claims typically include contractual rights to recovery for the same matters. See William A. Macan IV, “Review of US Tax Issues That Drive the Deals,” Thirteenth Annual US Cross-Border Leasing & Structured Finance Conference, p.19 (2002) (“Also noted is the somewhat duplicative claim to which the documents entitle the Investor when a T[ermination]V[alue]/SLV event occurs – the right to receive a TIA payment for the adverse tax consequences unless and until T[ermination] V[alue]/SLV has been paid in full.”).

C. The Leveraged Leases At Issue In This Objection

11. In 1987, Delta entered into leveraged lease transactions for four Boeing Model 757-232 aircraft with tail numbers N629DL, N630DL, N631DL and N632DL. In each of the transactions, U S WEST Financial Services, Inc. (“U S WEST”) was the Owner Participant, Wilmington Trust Company (“WTC”) was the Owner Trustee and The Citizens and Southern National Bank (“C&S”) was the Indenture Trustee. Trust Company Bank was the Lender.

12. In the relevant respects, the governing documents for these four transactions contain substantially the same provisions. The four transactions involved primarily the following agreements:

- (a) Delta, U S WEST (the Owner Participant), the Trust Company Bank (the Lender), WTC (as Owner Trustee) and C&S (as Indenture Trustee) all entered into a Participation Agreement for each of the Aircraft.

(b) WTC (as Owner Trustee) and Delta entered into a Lease for each Aircraft.

(c) For each of the Aircraft, WTC and C&S entered into a Trust Indenture and Security Agreement (a “Trust Indenture”) granting to C&S a security interest in WTC’s ownership interests in the Aircraft and assigning for security purposes WTC’s interests in the Lease to C&S. From the lease rentals, C&S made debt payments to the Lenders and distributed any excess to the Owner Trust.

(d) In each case, Delta entered into an Indemnity Agreement (as previously defined, a “TIA”) with U S WEST, as described in the following paragraphs.⁵

13. Delta understands that Comcast and/or Comcast MO has succeeded U S WEST as Owner Participant in each of the foregoing transactions, and that the claims filed by Comcast and/or Comcast MO that are subject to this Objection have been subsequently transferred to BNY Trust, consistent with transfer notices filed on February 9, 2007. Delta also understands that BNY is the successor to C&S as Indenture Trustee in each of the foregoing transactions.

14. Each of the TIA Claims seeks payment pursuant to a TIA. Each of the SLV Claims seeks payment of SLV under the Leases.

Grounds for the Objection

15. The TIA Claims and the SLV Claims seek compensation for the same alleged loss and overlap with each other. The overlap between the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims is recognized in the contracts themselves. Section 1 of each Lease includes a definition of “Net Economic Return” that makes clear that the calculation of SLV includes an amount that is calculated to take the Owner Participant's taxes into account and to preserve the Owner Participant's anticipated after-tax returns. Section 1 states:

⁵ Upon execution of appropriate confidentiality agreements, copies of the Lease, Participation Agreement, Trust Indenture and TIA for the transactions that are subject to this Objection will be supplied to the parties named in this Objection and to other parties who have claims in connection with the leveraged lease transactions and who wish to obtain copies.

“Net Economic Return” means the Owner Participant's (i) net after-tax return and aggregate cash flow originally expected by the Owner Participant (or as previously changed in connection with maintaining the Owner Participant's Net Economic Return) with respect to the transaction and (ii) annual book earnings (plus or minus 10%) originally expected (or as adjusted previously in connection with maintaining the Owner Participant's Net Economic Return) by the Owner Participant with respect to the transaction. Net Economic Return shall be computed on the basis of the same general methodology and assumptions as were utilized by the Owner Participant in determining the Basic Rent, Stipulated Loss Value and Termination Value percentages as of the Delivery Date.

In addition, Section 6(d) of each Participation Agreement provides that “[i]f any amount is paid by Lessee to the Owner Participant pursuant to the Indemnity Agreement, the amounts of Stipulated Loss Value and Termination Value set forth in Exhibit C to the Lease shall be recomputed in the manner set forth in Section 3(e) of the Lease to reflect the fact of such payment having been made by Lessee.” Furthermore, section 7(b) of each TIA states that no payment under the TIA is due for “any event whereby a party ... is required to pay and shall have paid in full Stipulated Loss Value or Termination Value.” The contractual language indicates that the same claim is included in both the TIA calculation and the SLV calculation.

16. Delta submits that to the extent the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims overlap and seek compensation for the same loss, only one such claim may be allowed, and the Court should reduce the TIA Claims and/or the SLV Claims to eliminate the overlaps among them.

A. The TIA Claims and SLV Claims Overlap And Seek Recovery For The Same Loss, And To The Extent Of That Overlap Only One Claim Can Be Allowed

17. It is common in the law that a claimant may be entitled to recover for a single injury based on multiple legal theories. Persons injured by defective products, for example, may be entitled to recover compensation under theories of strict product liability, negligence, and/or breach of warranty. Persons who are deceived in connection with financial investments may be entitled to recover compensation under claims of fraud, negligent misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty, breach of contractual representations or warranties, and/or violations of federal or state disclosure statutes. Officers and directors who seek indemnification may be entitled to rely on statutory principles, corporate by-laws or individual employment contracts to provide such indemnification. There are a host of other examples that can easily be identified and that commonly arise both within bankruptcy and outside bankruptcy.

18. It is generally recognized that a loss provides a claimant with only one right of payment, no matter how many separate legal theories may be invoked in support of that right of payment. See Diversified Graphics, Ltd. v. Groves, 868 F.2d 293, 295 (8th Cir. 1989) (“Regardless of whether the harm was the result of negligence or breach of fiduciary duty or a combination of both, there is only a single injury and there may only be a single recovery”). This rule applies in bankruptcy cases as well. For bankruptcy purposes, a claim constitutes a “right to payment.” See 11 U.S.C. § 101. The existence of multiple theories under which recovery may be sought from a debtor does not change the fact that a single loss gives rise to a single right to payment and therefore a single “claim” against the debtor for bankruptcy purposes.

19. In bankruptcy, therefore, “multiple recoveries for an identical injury are generally disallowed.” See In re Finley, Kumble, Wagner, Heine, Underberg, Manley, Myerson & Casey, 160 B.R. 882, 894 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1993). In Finley, the debtor had failed to make required pension plan contributions, resulting in an underfunding of its pension plan. Id. at 893. The pension plan trustee, on the one hand, filed a claim against the debtor to collect the unpaid plan contributions. Id. at 887. The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (“PBGC”), on the other hand, filed a claim against the debtor for the amount of the debtor's unfunded benefit liabilities that were insured by the government. Id. Each claim was based on a different legal theory, but each claim related to the same "loss": that is, the economic effect (on the pension plan) of the debtor's failure to make a required payment. The bankruptcy trustee objected to the claims, arguing that both claims sought recovery for an identical injury. Id. at 893.

20. The pension plan trustee and PBGC argued in Finley that their claims arose from different legal rights and that, even if they overlapped, the claims should only be reduced to the extent that the debtor's estate actually paid the separate claims in "tiny bankruptcy dollars," not to the extent that the claims were allowed in pre-bankruptcy dollars. Id. The Bankruptcy Court rejected this position, finding it to be "entirely at odds with fundamental bankruptcy policy favoring equality of distribution among similarly situated creditors." Id. at 894. The Bankruptcy Court noted that the claims sought compensation for the same loss (the debtor's missed pension contribution), and that the allowance of both claims, or the reduction of the claims only to the extent of actual payment in "tiny bankruptcy dollars," would result in a distribution with respect to that loss that would exceed the ratable distribution to all other unsecured creditors. Id. at 894. The Bankruptcy Court held that such an outcome would be "inconsistent with the letter and spirit of Title 11," and disallowed the claims to the extent that they sought compensation for the same loss. Id.

21. Guided by the principles of ratable distribution and of uniform treatment for creditors, other bankruptcy courts also have stricken claims to the extent they overlap and to the extent they seek recovery for the same loss. See, e.g., In re Simeco, Inc., No. 93-61772, 1996 WL 651001, at *3 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio Feb. 15, 1996) (disallowing claim to the extent it related to the same loss that was covered by another claim in light of the potential windfall to the creditor, and holding that multiple recoveries for the same loss “would violate the principles of ratable distribution and offend the notion of uniform treatment for creditors”); In re Chateaugay Corp., 115 B.R. 760, 784 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1990), aff’d, 130 B.R. 690 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1991), vacated by agreement of the parties, 17 Employee Benefits Cas. (BNA) 1102 (S.D.N.Y. 1993)⁶ (holding that claims for unpaid contributions and claims for “plan insufficiency” were duplicative of each other, and that allowing “two dollars of claims against the same Debtor for one dollar of loss violates the principles of equality of distribution and uniformity of treatment of creditors that are fundamental to the Code”); In the Matter of Brinke Transp., Inc., No. 87-03785, 1989 WL 233147, at *3 (Bankr. D.N.J. Jan. 23, 1989) (where claims substantially overlapped, striking claim that was subsumed in other claims). The same result is necessary in the present case to prevent the affront to bankruptcy policy identified in Finley and in the other cases cited above.

22. The policy against duplicative recoveries is also reflected in 11 U.S.C. § 502(e), which bars duplicative claims by a creditor and by a guarantor of the creditor’s claim. See S. Rep. No. 95-989, 95th Cong., 2d Sess. 65 (1978), reprinted in 1978 U.S. Code Cong. & Admin. News 5787, 5851; H.R. Rep. No. 95-595, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. 354 (1977), reprinted in 1978 U.S. Code Cong. & Admin. News 5963, 6310 (stating that Section 502(e) “prevents competition between a creditor and its guarantor for the limited proceeds in the estate”); Fine Organics Corp. v. Hexcel Corp. (In re Hexcel Corp.), 174 B.R. 807, 811 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1994) (“The legislative history surrounding the enactment of 11 U.S.C. § 502(e)(1)(B) reveals that § 502(e)(1)(B) was primarily intended to protect the limited assets of a bankruptcy estate from duplicative claims”).

⁶ Although the bankruptcy court’s decision in Chateaugay was vacated by agreement, the Simetco court still found the reasoning persuasive with respect to its holding that duplicative claims should be disallowed based on bankruptcy policy. In re Simetco, Inc., 1996 WL 651001, at *3 n.3.

23. The SLV Claims and the TIA Claims are set forth in separate contracts.

However, to the extent that the SLV Claims and TIA Claims provide compensation for the same economic consequences (the effect of a triggering event on the expected economic returns of the Owner Participant and the tax group of which the Owner Participant is a member), they simply represent multiple legal theories upon which the same loss may be recovered. For bankruptcy purposes, a single loss can give rise to only one “right to payment” and only one claim against the debtor, regardless of how many separate contractual theories of recovery may be asserted.

24. In the transactions at issue in this Objection, the Leases (and SLV Claims) were assigned to the Indenture Trustee (now BNY) as security for loans that were made, with the result that TIA Claims and SLV Claims have been asserted by different parties. However, to the extent that the SLV Claims and TIA Claims address the same losses, only one claim may be allowed, and that is true regardless of whether one of the overlapping contract claims was assigned to a different party. The fact that the same loss is addressed in two separate contracts, and the fact that one contract is assigned to an Indenture Trustee while another is retained by the Owner Participant, cannot convert a single right to payment into two separate rights to payment.

B. The Total Of The “Allowed” TIA Claims And SLV Claims Cannot Exceed The Collective “Right to Payment” Under The Parties’ Contracts

25. Delta’s maximum payment obligation with respect to the TIA Claims and SLV Claims would be equal, in each relevant transaction, to the amount specified as SLV for that transaction. More specifically, Section 6(d) of each Participation Agreement states that “[i]f any amount is paid by Lessee to the Owner Participant pursuant to the Indemnity Agreement, the amounts of Stipulated Loss Value and Termination Value set forth in Exhibit C to the Lease shall be recomputed in the manner set forth in Section 3(e) of the Lease to reflect the fact of such payment having been made by Lessee.” Accordingly, if any amount were to be paid on a TIA

Claim, the SLV Claim would have to be reduced by that amount. Similarly, Section 7(b) of each TIA states that no payment is due for “any event whereby a party ... is required to pay and shall have paid in full Stipulated Loss Value or Termination Value.” Accordingly, the payment of SLV extinguishes the TIA Claim, and the total payment obligation cannot exceed the SLV Claim.

26. In bankruptcy, a “claim” is a “right to payment.” See 11 U.S.C. § 101. By definition, the total amount of the “allowed” TIA Claims and SLV Claims cannot exceed the collective “right of payment” that the holders of those claims would have had outside of bankruptcy. In the case of the claims that are the subject of this Objection, this means that the collective allowed amount of the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims cannot exceed the SLV that is specified for each transaction.

27. If this Court were to allow both the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims, without adjustment for the overlaps among them, then (a) the allowed claims would exceed the collective “right of payment” that the claimants have, and (b) the claimants would receive a higher percentage recovery with respect to their “right of payment” than other creditors would receive. An example helps to illustrate this:

(a) Assume, for purposes of illustration, that the required SLV payment in a given transaction were $100, of which $75 represented payment of outstanding debt and $25 represented compensation to the Owner Participant for its anticipated actual losses.

(b) Assume also that Delta’s distributions to unsecured creditors (in bankruptcy) would be equal to 60% of creditors’ claims.

(c) Outside of bankruptcy, if Delta satisfied the $100 SLV obligation, then (i) $75 would be used to repay lenders, (ii) the remaining $25 would be paid to the Owner

Participant to cover its losses, and (iii) the TIA Claim would be extinguished. In that case, Delta's total out-of-bankruptcy payment obligation – or the collective “right of payment” possessed by the Indenture Trustee and the Owner Participant – would be $100.

(d) In bankruptcy, the collective “claims” asserted by the Indenture Trustee and the Owner Participant similarly should be equal to $100 – the amount of the collective “right to payment” that they would have outside of bankruptcy.

(e) If the Court were instead to allow an SLV Claim in the amount of $100, and also to allow a TIA Claim in the amount of $25, then the total of the allowed claims would not reflect the actual “right of payment” that those claimants possess. Instead, the allowed claims would equal $125, compared to a collective “right of payment” of only $100.

(f) Similarly, if the Court were to allow both the SLV Claim and the TIA Claim, Delta would then distribute a total of $75 with respect to those two claims (60% times $125). That would mean a distribution of 75% with respect to an out-of-bankruptcy payment obligation of $100, or a recovery of 75% – compared to a recovery by other unsecured creditors of only 60%.

As the courts have consistently found, such an inequitable distribution would be entirely “inconsistent with the letter and spirit of Title 11.” See Finley, 160 B.R. at 894.

28. In light of the fact that the TIA Claims overlap with the SLV Claims, Delta submits that the total allowable amount for both claims cannot exceed the amount of the SLV Claim asserted by BNY for each transaction.

C. The TIA Claims And The SLV Claims Should Be Adjusted To Eliminate Overlaps

29. In the transactions covered by this Objection, the parties' agreements make clear that the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims must be adjusted to take account of each other. If an amount has been paid under the tax indemnity agreement, Section 6(d) of the Participation Agreement requires that SLV be reduced. If the lessee pays SLV, Section 7(b) of each TIA provides that the TIA Claim is extinguished.

30. The parties' agreements are less clear, however, in defining which agreement should take priority over the other. On the one hand, the documents make clear that the rights to collect Stipulated Loss Value have been assigned to the Indenture Trustee. On the other hand, the documents also state that the Owner Participant retained the TIA Claims and that those claims are not part of the trust estate held by the Indenture Trustee. Since the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims overlap with each other, those provisions simply are in conflict with each other.

31. Delta requests that the Court eliminate the overlaps and duplication among the TIA Claims and the SLV Claims in such manner as the Court deems just based on the underlying circumstances and equities. In any event, Delta submits that an Order must be entered that ensures that the total of the allowed TIA Claims and SLV Claims for each transaction does not exceed the SLV that is specified for that transaction.

Procedure for Responses to Objection

32. Any party wishing to oppose the relief requested herein must file a response in accordance with the Court's Order Establishing Procedures for Claims Objections entered October 12, 2006, docket number 3381 (the "Claims Objection Procedures Order"), a copy of which is available at no charge on the Debtors' Case Information Website (located at www.deltadocket.com). In the event a party does not wish to oppose the relief requested herein, it is not necessary for such party to file any response with the Court, notify Delta and the Committee or their counsel or undertake any further action.

33. The deadline to file a response to this Objection is noted on the cover page hereof. Consistent with the Claims Objection Procedures Order, no response shall be accepted or considered unless, prior to such deadline, it is filed with the Court, 300 Quarropas Street, White Plains, New York 10601 and actually received by (a) counsel to the Debtors, Debevoise & Plimpton LLP, 919 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10022, Attn: Michael E.
